Art Unit: 1732

1. Claims 1-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The specification requires adding "composing agent" (page 2, line 21) in addition to a foaming agent, crosslinking agent and other additives to a thermoplastic elastomer (the apparent alternative nomenclature "composing other additive" is used at page 4, line 24). Independent claims 1 and 12 specify "adding different additive", but the disclosure is such that undue experimentation would be required of one of ordinary skill in the art in order to determine the additive to be used.

2. Claims 1-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. These claims are indefinite for several reasons. First of all, "in atmosphere" in the preamble of claims 1 and 12 is vague. In addition, one of ordinary skill in the art would be unable to determine the metes and bounds of the claims due to the phrase "adding different additive" in claims 1 and 12. Also, it is unclear as to what "normal pressure" in claims 1 and 12 encompasses. It is also unclear as to what the phrases "weighing the sheet to an oven" in claim 1 and "cutting the selected weight of the sheet members to a mold" and "cutting the blank to an oven to foam in a normal pressure" in claim 12 mean. The final clause of claim 1 states that a "continuous foam" is produced, but a prior clause requires "cutting" such that the foam would appear to no longer be continuous.

Art Unit: 1732

Claims 2, 6, 7, 9, 11, 13, 17 and 18 use improper Markush terminology ("selected from the group consisting of" and "and" rather than "or" is proper). Another possible alternative is simply to use some form of comprises or comprising.

Clarification is required.
